

Examples of Measles Policies & Procedures that Some Companies Have Developed

Example #2

Airline Industry

(customer-facing employees)

One member is employed by the airlines and shared that all employees are covered for all adult immunizations through their 100% wellness coverage imbedded in their medical benefits plan which also communications an array of information about vaccination. Because communicable illness is a potential occupation hazard for cabin crews, the organization recently posted a communication about measles that stressed that employees should discuss concerns about immunity with their HCP if they are unsure of their vaccination status, ensure their children are vaccinated according to CDC guidance and, for customer-facing employees, remind them about routine processes for handling “ill customer” concerns. CDC has a Guidance for Commercial Aircraft Operators: Measles.